EQUAL SUFFRAGE

Amendment Number Eight—An Affirmative Argument

Probably the act of the California legislature which interests our W. C. T. U. members most, which for so many years endorsed woman's suffrage, was the adoption by a vote of 33 to 5 in the senate and 65 to 12 in the assembly of senate constitutional amendment No. 8 which means equal suffrage will be submitted to the people to vote upon October 10th. The battle is on. The moral forces supporting it, and the forces that make for degradation, with many indifferent and some misinformed, arrayed against it, and all who vote against it will help the liquor men, for they in convention in no uncertain terms "Resolved, That we will by every means in our power oppose woman's ballot, for the destruction of our trade will surely come if they are not defeated." In all candidness we ask, Why has woman not as clear a title to the ballot as have men? The Declaration of Independence says, "Governments derive their just powers from the governed." Is woman not governed; does she give her consent to be governed by laws made by man? Should she not have the same right and protection of her inalienable rights to life, liberty and happiness? Men need the council of and the help that woman's ballot can give, as much as they need each other in other things. Not so many will go astray when they have had that comradeship and respect that comes from mutual interests. They will go hand in hand to save each other from the pitfalls of life. We are told that in states where women vote the divorce courts are much less patronized. Surely Southern California with its appalling divorce record of one to every four marriages should be very eager to place the ballot in the hands of women.

The White Ribboners of Bakersfield presented a petition recently to the city council, asking for the early and Sunday closing of saloons, there being fourteen yards of women's names and fourteen feet of men's names, and that august body took it under advisement. Think of the hours these petitioners could have spent at home, had they had the ballot to bring about the desired end. Another instance where man-made laws are enforced by women. This takes a great deal of time and strength for a few to make a beautiful place free from the evils of the saloons, for the majority to live in, as we know by experience, that it is the few who are protecting the evil. And yet there are those men who constantly say "Woman's place is in the home," the only excuse their wisdom can conceive of. It would only take a few minutes to go to the polling place, fill out a ballot and drop it into the box for city, county, state and national affairs. Some women and those who go to the theater, picture shows and public places of all kinds, mixing with men of the vilest type, perhaps sitting by a thief, or worse, at an opera, lift their hands in horror when you speak on this question—they would have to go where men are.

Bless their dear hearts. It would not hurt one of us who know our place, and we can not accept such a flimsy excuse; too many men are willing to leave the most vital affairs of our country to the corrupt politicians. It is not patriotic either in man or woman. I feel confident had all our good men voted in the past we would be living in a better governed land. Good men are admonished to vote October 10th "yes" for this amendment No. 8. Turn out and help your state. All the world is looking to California to give women the ballot. All who wish to study this question more can send to the clerk of the senate at Washington or to Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma for a copy of Mr. Vera Goldthwaite's memorial to the sixtieth congress, in support of an amendment to the constitution granting woman's suffrage. It contains strong arguments. He is the husband of our singer, Ellen Beach Yaw, who is equally interested. In one of his extracts he says, "It is said women do not care to vote, neither do they care to pay taxes, but if the government compels one, it should permit the other. If she pays money into the public treasury she ought to vote and help direct the economical expenditure of it. It requires more wisdom to pay out than to pay in."

MRS. HATTIE E. GAYLORD, Pres.

(The importance of this amendment warrants a full and frank discussion. Hereafter the NEWS will present on alternate weeks arguments for and against. Next week the negative will be heard from.—Ed.)

VALLEY IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION MEETING.

K. of P. hall was well filled Tuesday evening last with an audience attracted by the unusually good program furnished exclusively by home talent. It was expected that the water question would be discussed at some length, but the gentleman who was down for a speech on the subject was absent. Mr. J. C. Sherer explained briefly the status of the question and Messrs. F. L. Muhleman and Mr. H. M. Doll made short talks on the subject, which will be taken up again at the next meeting, with a speaker from Los Angeles to discuss the Owens river aqueduct and its effect on this section. It was decided to hold the regular monthly meeting hereafter on Thursday instead of Tuesday. The program which was published in last week's paper followed the regular order of business and was fully up to expectations. In the absence of Miss Katherine Hobbs Mr. Herbert Henning gave two piano selections. Mrs. L. C. Chobe made her first appearance as a singer before a Glendale audience and was enthusiastically received, responding to an encore. Mrs. Steelman read from "Tom Sawyer," showing by her rendering of the famous "Whitewashing" story, her full appreciation of the boy character. Mr. A. R. Taylor, accompanied by Mrs. Taylor, sang two solos in his usual inimitable style. Mrs. S. G. Biddle, accompanied by Miss Myrtle Harrison, gave two very enjoyable violin selections. Mr. Alex Badger, one of the high school orators, delivered his oration on "Progress," which was well received. Mrs. D. M. Orth accompanied by Mrs. Cathleen Dodge, pleased the audience by a vocal selection.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

At the meeting held Tuesday evening the regular routine business was transacted. Mr. Shropshire making a report for the railroad committee and Mr. McGillis submitting his report on the banquet lately held. Mr. Bott of the Glendale book store offered part of his store as headquarters for the Chamber to be used as a general information bureau. His offer was accepted and the chamber appointed a committee consisting of W. D. Buck and W. L. Kirk, to have the matter in charge and to take immediate steps to carry into effect the object intended. Ten new members were enrolled.

POULTRY RAISING—A PRACTICAL TEST.

By Miss Mabel Kingsley.

Poultry is one of the best products of Southern California, if the business is carried on right. No one need have the least hope of success in poultry, otherwise. Like lots of other things people start, if the very first results are not the very best they get discouraged and quit. That's not the road to success (although many travel it). Think, kind reader, for yourself, and you will find you will be more successful in the end. Take poultry for a subject and see what you can do, and what can be done. Here are twenty-five well-fed White Plymouth Rock hens, and for one week what they have done. The chickens laid 95 eggs during that time; eggs sold for thirty-five and forty cents a dozen. This is from January 28, 1911, when few hens were laying, and if you have any you know that January is the poorest month in the year for chickens, as they lay few eggs and most of them are setting. The feed for twenty-five hens one week fed in a hopper is: cracked corn 10 lbs., corn meal 4.36 lbs., wheat bran, 4.35 lbs., wheat middlings 4.36 lbs., beef scraps 3.62 lbs., oyster shells 3.10 lbs., grit 3.10 lbs., whole wheat 10 lbs. Mixed well this makes the feed for a week. Chickens should be kept clean. Laying hens should be cleaned every day if possible. If not, every other day if necessary. Clean windows, as sunshine and fresh air is necessary for a heavy winter egg production. Laying hens should for no reason be put off at feeding time, as they need to be fed regularly.

MERCHANTS' EXHIBIT.

Plans have materialized for the Merchants' Exhibit and a successful display of goods such as are handled by our Glendale merchants is assured. The affair will be given the second week in October in the Knights of Pythias hall under the auspices of Chapter L. P. E. O. Booth space can be secured next week of Mrs. Ray Chase, who has the floor plan with spaces marked off ready for sale. When a similar affair was given two years ago by the ladies of the Tuesday Afternoon Club it was conceded by all that it had advertised our city and our merchants' goods in a most advantageous manner. The first two days and evenings of the week will be given over to the merchants for arrangement of booths. Light the entire week, and plenty of it, will be paid for by the P. E. O's.

Some have already asked for larger space than that previously held and these merchants who understand the venture are growing enthusiastic over the project. "Keep trade at home" will be the slogan suggested in each display. To this end will every energy be bent. It will be a profitable and pleasant advertisement of our city.

BRIDGE CLUB.

The ladies of the Bridge Club were entertained Thursday by Mrs. Barke of Riverdale drive. The members gathered in the Indian room at Casa Verdugo where a delicious course luncheon was served. Following the luncheon a pleasant afternoon was passed at the bridge tables by Mrs. Mary H. Gridley, Mrs. J. W. Netheny, Mrs. S. A. Williams, Mrs. C. L. Powell, Mrs. Charles Shattuck, Mrs. A. O. Dolson, Mrs. Muir, Mrs. McKinney, Mrs. Dorsey, Mrs. Lewis, Miss Jennie Lind and the hostess, Mrs. Barke.

The next meeting of the club will be held Thursday, August 3rd, at the home of Mrs. Charles Shattuck on Central avenue.

HIGH PRICE FOR GRAPES.

The first carload of grapes shipped from Coachella (Imperial Valley) this year to New York brought $3400, some of the crates (about 30 pounds) selling for as much as five dollars.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

The dealers in realty hereabouts do not seem to be noticing the effect of the warm weather on their business to any depressing extent. They report business considerably better than at this time last year. Values have advanced probably twenty per cent as compared with a year ago. Another thing quite noticeable is the fact that the class of houses being built is better as a rule than a year ago; at that time they ran an average below the $1500 mark, now the average has risen to quite that figure with quite a number of residences under construction that will cost from $2000 to $3500. One of our local architects actually complains that he has all that he can do.

The west 94 feet of the Marsh property on Fourth street running from the P. E. track back of the depot to within a few feet of the Vert-Mont, has been sold to a local syndicate. It is understood that the price was $8500.

Mr. T. A. Wright has sold to local people and to a Los Angeles man within the past week three 25-foot lots in the high school tract facing on Brand; the exact price is unknown, but it probably was near $1200 a lot.

Mr. B. Loveless is building two houses on the corner of Louise and Third streets, one a four-room cottage to cost about $1200, the other a residence that will cost $2000 or more.

R. A. Blackburn reports the sale of lot 16, block 3, Orange Grove avenue (Fifth street east of Glendale) to Mr. Clewett, a Los Angeles attorney, who occupies the premises. Mr. Fred Evans is putting up a residence on the Piedmont tract, First street.

Chandler & Lawson have the contract to erect three modern residences on Riverdale Drive, between Central Ave. and Columbus, for S. C. Pachter.

THE SHOW AT FILGER'S OPERA HOUSE.

The vaudeville show which was given in Filger's opera house last Saturday evening proved a pleasing surprise to those who were fortunate enough to attend. In times past performances of similar character were widely advertised and gave promise of being something out of the ordinary, but when the show was really given those who attended were a little disappointed. On the contrary, this show, which did not have an unusual amount of publicity, was a pleasing surprise in that it proved an exhibition which bordered on those exhibitions seen on the professional stage. Every act was an astonisher and was exceedingly well rendered.

The attendance, though quite large, did not come up to the hopes of some of the managers of the exhibition, but the show was of such merit that any future performance given by this aggregation of players will doubtless receive liberal patronage.

DEATH OF N. D. BURLINGHAM.

Mr. N. D. Burlingham, an old resident of Glendale, living on Sycamore street, near the San Fernando road, died on July 20th and was buried by the G. A. R. at Grand View cemetery on the 22nd. Mr. Burlingham was an old soldier of the civil war, eighty years of age on the fourth of July last. He had been in poor health for eight months or so, but was only confined to his bed about a week.

MASONIC VISITORS.

San Fernando Lodge, F. & A. M. visited Glendale some twenty strong Tuesday night and conferred the third degree for the local lodge. After the ceremonies there was an ample luncheon served. Among the visitors were ex-Sheriff John Burr and H. G. Hubbard, old timers in the valley.

The rehearsal for "Cantata Queen Esther" will be held Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of this week at the Christian church at 7:30 prompt. This fine entertainment which will be given in two or three weeks by seventy-five or more singers in costume, will, we hope, interest the population of this whole valley, and fill our audience room to overflowing, as it will be the best given in beauty and art in music this year. Mr. G. L. Howes, director, was formerly of Detroit, Mich., and an old-time intimate friend of Mrs. Hattie E. Gaylord.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The attendance at Sunday school is keeping up splendidly through the vacation months. The text is helping to relieve the congestion in the auditorium. In order to give more time for the interesting opening and closing exercises planned by the superintendent, as well as to give more time for the study of the lesson, it has been decided to begin the school at 9:30 a.m., beginning next Sunday. All are requested to come on time.

The regular preaching services at 11 a.m. and 7:45 p.m. are being well attended during the summer months. Large congregations were present last Sunday. The music was inspiring. Next Sunday the pastor will preach morning and evening, continuing in the morning the series on Quaint Truths from Quaker Texts, his text being "Ye shall not round the corners of your heads, neither shall ye mar the corners of your hearts."

Dances to be Resumed

The dances which were given during the past winter months at K. of P. hall on Brand Boulevard, and which were discontinued on account of the summer months, will be started again at the same hall next Thursday evening, August 3rd. This will be the opening dance of the fall season and the price of admission will be the same as on former occasions, 35 cents for each person.

During the past winter these dances proved the center of social activity among the most prominent residents of the valley and they give promise of proving quite popular during the fall season.

Mr. MacMullin, the enterprising dairyman, has reached over and annexed Eagle Rock to his milk distribution district. He has bought one or two small dairies there and does a great business. In answering the charge that he is a monopolist, Mr. MacMullin says that where he has succeeded in giving strict attention to business, in employing careful and expert milkers and in using every precaution known to the trade to assure the purity of the milk served by him. All of which seems to be borne out by the facts.

CITY TRUSTEES

Consolidated Water Co. Heard From—City Hall Lot Matter Straightened Out—Carnegie's Offer to be Accepted

All members present. The order of business was changed and the matter of complaint as to removal of the pillar on northwest corner of Fourth and Brand, was brought up. Dr. L. N. Rudy appeared before the board, made a satisfactory explanation and upon his request was granted a permit to do the thing that had been done. The following bids for furnishing the electric light department with a voltage regulator were opened and declared as follows: Westinghouse Electric Co. $1010; General Electric Co. $1069.65.

A number of warrants were ordered drawn. The clerk reported that he had communicated with the Consolidated Water Co. as requested and that Mr. Rogers of that company had answered by phone saying that the company intended to put in a new reservoir in Verdugo Canon soon which would greatly increase the pressure, but that this could not be promised for this season.

The city attorney reported that in the matter of lot 21, block 10, he had reached an agreement with Mr. Wright, the owner, whereby the city would pay $3170 for the property and avoid condemnation proceedings; also that the escrow proceedings will be completed in a few days. The report was received and approved. It appearing that former City Attorney Muhleman had waived the restrictions placed on this property, the act of said attorney was approved. The clerk and president of the board were authorized to draw a warrant for $75 on library site and city hall bond fund to complete payment on lot 21, block 10.

The health officer recommended that ordinance be amended to require cesspools in all parts of the city and the city attorney was instructed to frame such ordinance.

A request from the W. C. T. U. for the city to furnish ice for the fountain at Fourth and Glendale avenue was referred to the public works committee.

A communication was received from Purcell Gale & Gray in re bond of builder of city hall; filed.

A communication was received from the Title Guarantee & Trust Co., in regard to restrictions on lots 19, 20 and 21, block 59, referred to city attorney.

The opinion of the city attorney was expressed to the effect that the restrictions need not delay the transfer and the clerk was instructed to instruct the title company to proceed.

A communication from Sidney Dell in regard to storm water from Verdugo Canon was received. The clerk was instructed to inform Mr. Dell that the committee having the matter in charge has not exhausted its powers, that it is investigating the proposition and will be ready to report soon.

An application for the position of street superintendent; filed.

The plans for proposed city hall were then taken up for consideration. Plans were presented as follows: By Montrose Warn, Otto Johnson and Walter E. Welch, Chas. E. Shattuck and Paul Tuttle.

A resolution was passed at this point that when the board adjourn it be to meet Thursday evening next when plans will be discussed and decision probably reached.

Trustee Lane made a report and recommendation from the library board to the effect that the offer of Mr. Carnegie for a $10,000 library be accepted. The trustees approved the recommendation and the clerk was instructed to notify Mr. Carnegie in accordance therewith.

A resolution was adopted approving map of Hilda Heights tract. Resolution adopted amending contract for electric light poles to B. F. Kierulff, Jr., & Co.

An ordinance regulating disposal of garbage and sewerage was read first and second times and referred to police and sanitary committee.

Ordinance amending the license ordinance passed first and second reading.

GLENDAL, CAL., JULY 28, 1911

Pasadena, Highland Park and Alhambra are all attempting to prove by mathematical processes that the new normal school should be located in their respective towns.

Senator John D. Works supports the president's reciprocity treaty. He also opposes the recall as applied to the judiciary, both of which facts we note to his credit.

Brett Clark, the well-known conductor on the Glendale branch of the P. E., had a lively column and a hall in last Sunday's Times on the troubles and pastimes of a motor car man. Mr. Clark has a talent as a writer, knowing what to say that will interest the reader and saying it well.

Senator Wm. A. Clark of Montana, has formally opened his $120,000 organ, said to be the largest chamber organ in the world. It is set up in the main picture gallery of his mansion in New York. The organ was built by the Murray Harris Organ Company of Los Angeles.

Luther Burbank's diatribe against the U. S. Agricultural department, which refuses to recognize him as the originator of the "Spineless Cactus," merely goes to show that he possesses one of the common weaknesses of genius, he lacks balance. Frankly, we cannot forgive him the "Wonderberry."

One of our contemporaries recently published the mouldy old chestnut about the ten grains of wheat found in an Egyptian mummy, as an item of news. The New York Herald gives the history of this story which has been going the rounds of the newspapers for over half a century. The Herald says that the story first appeared in the Augusta (Me.) Advertiser, James G. Blaine, editor, in 1851.

The two lady politicians from Colorado who have been throwing compliments at each other in Los Angeles afford a happy example of the possibilities along that line that the adoption of the "Equal Suffrage" amendment in California will afford. One of these ladies asserts that the people (the women) of Colorado elected an "uneducated" woman as superintendent of schools, and the lady so elected has come hither to show that she is quite otherwise.

BANK DEPOSITS IN LOS ANGELES.

From an interesting pamphlet put out by the Security Savings Bank we glean the following: There are forty banks in Los Angeles, and their total deposits on June 30th last amounted to $138,218,417.86, an increase of $15,286,422.77 over the same month a year ago. Twenty-two of these banks have deposits of over a million dollars each; one has thirty-one millions, the next in order being two with over sixteen millions, one of twelve, one of nine, one of eight and so on down to $117,000 in a town recently annexed.

ALASKA'S OPPORTUNITY.

The people of Alaska claim that their vast territory is the dog upon which the ultra conservationists of the country have been trying their new theories, and they like it so little that they have been threatening secession and all kinds of kicks. The coming Public Lands Convention, which will be held in Denver September 28-30, provides an opportunity for Alaska to talk in meeting. That territory has more public lands than any of the states and territories and it is reported that plans are being made to have a large delegation of prominent citizens here to explain their position and voice their objections to the present policy of the government. Incidentally it is probable that the Alaskans will find plenty of supporters in their objections and the convention may aid in devising some way of helping them.

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE.

Amendment number one which received the editor's vote at the last election because of belief in the sincerity and ability of the tax revision committee that stood sponsors for it, seems to be growing in favor as its practical operation becomes known. The Sierra Madre News estimates that taxpayers in small towns will be saved about 31 cents on the hundred dollars valuation as compared with last year. The amendment referred to takes from municipalities the right to tax corporations, they to be taxed only for state purposes. This deprives the larger cities of a considerable revenue, but on the other hand no tax is now levied for state purposes on real estate, the corporations having to bear the brunt of running the state—not through the legislature as heretofore, but through the treasurer's office. The only levy made by the state this year on real estate will be about five cents on the hundred for the bond issues, principal among which is that for the state road system. Last year the state levied a tax of 36 cents on realty.

BISHOP'S SCHOOLS.

Bishop Joseph H. Johnson of the Episcopal church, has purchased the Harvard School for Boys in Los Angeles which under his management will be conducted on high educational lines, which does not necessarily mean the "higher education." The bishop announces his intention to establish a number of "Bishop's schools." They are to be essentially "Christian" schools, but no effort will be made to influence students toward any particular denomination.

"The school is intended to fit boys for college, for the technical schools, for the government schools and for a business career. Whatever course a boy chooses, it is intended he shall be taught the rudiments of the English language, to spell correctly, read intelligently, cipher accurately, and write a respectable letter."

To a Philistine beyond the sacred educational pale the thought might occur that our grammar schools should teach so effectually the rudiments above mentioned that there would no necessity exist for the establishment of special schools for that purpose. But as the rudiments are not deemed so essential in the education of youth as they once were, it is matter of congratulation that such a broad-minded Christian as Bishop Johnson sees the necessity for the work and will to some extent supply it.

It is a curious thing that in the senate, the stronghold of the "Interests," should be found the strongest opposition to the policy of reciprocity. It cannot be said that these interests did not oppose the Canadian reciprocity bill in face of the fact that the paper monopoly put up such a strong fight against the introduction of wood pulp from the Canadian forests free. The position of the insurgents who opposed it will require considerable explaining; it was their first opportunity to smite the interests in a most effectual way and they refused to smite. The real explanation is that it does not accord with their policy to support the president in anything. The treaty has yet to be approved by the Canadian parliament before it becomes effective, with the exception as to wood pulp which will be admitted free in any event. The results of the treaty, if approved on the other side of the line will merely mark progress as to the most of the articles admitted free. It is not likely that the price of grain will be lowered and so cheapen flour to the consumer, but it is the beginning of a much needed reform, the first step to which is always the most difficult and therefore the most important.

THE PRESIDENT WINS.

By a vote of 53 to 27 in the senate the Canadian reciprocity treaty was approved the other day, the "Insurgent" Republicans with two exceptions voting against it, the Democrats giving it almost solid support. Congress may now adjourn as soon as it pleases, the business for which it was specially called together being transacted. The history of this measure forms a remarkable chapter in the story of legislation and shows the extent to which the breaking down of political lines has gone. Not in recent years, if ever, has a measure brought into being by the president representing one of the great political parties, owed its passage to the votes of his political opponents, and the results to follow in political circles, are as interesting as they are problematical. Certainly it is a great personal triumph for President Taft, whose action in the matter from its inception has been most evidently dictated by a stern devotion to principle in the face of opposition by his own friends. It is this characteristic of independence regardless of results, to himself, which first attracted our attention to Mr. Taft as proper president.

WEST GLENDALE, M. E. CHURCH DEDICATED

Interesting and Impressive Services—Starts Clear of Debt

Short History of the Organization

In the spring of 1908, seeing the need of a place of worship for the people of this vicinity, Mr. J. C. Lennox, of First Church, Glendale, erected at his own expense a small building on the lot now occupied by the present structure. A Sunday School was organized with L. A. Wood as superintendent. The first preaching services were conducted by Revs. Burton, Blackburn and others. This arrangement was continued for a few months, or until the advent of Dr. A. B. Morrison, who has carried on the work up to the present time. Under his ministrations, on May 26, 1909, the West Glendale Methodist Episcopal Church, with a membership of twenty, was organized, Rev. L. A. Thompson, D.D., Superintendent of the Pasadena District, presiding. The official members consisted of the following Stewards: C. F. Smith, J. W. Durham, M. S. Van Loven, W. R. Burdington. Sunday School Superintendent, L. A. Wood.

It soon became evident that more commodious quarters should be secured, and in September, 1910, the foundation was laid for the present building, the work being pushed rapidly, so that the first service was held December 18, 1910, in the completed building.

The dedication ceremonies last Sunday afternoon were interesting and impressive. The music furnished by the choir was excellent and the solos by Miss Costa and Mr. Edmiston were delightfully rendered. The sermon preached by Rev. Matt. Hughes of Pasadena was one which fully explained in itself the reputation for eloquence and deep thought which that reverend gentleman has achieved. Rev. Morrison was in a happy frame of mind as were the trustees and various officials and members of the church who by their efforts have made the dedication of the building possible. The board of trustees made a statement of the financial status showing the total cost of the building to be $3408.97, of which sum $1509.62 had been paid. This left a balance of $1899.35, of which amount $500 had been provided for, leaving the sum of $1399.35 yet to be raised. It took just about twenty minutes to secure this amount in pledges and cash and when the congregation adjourned they left a church building practically free of debt.

House Numbers.

Before the advent of the house number only business signs, coats of arms and house names marked the different buildings. Then, in London, for instance, one had to look for Mr. Jones, should he desire to call upon that man, in say, "Whitechapel," not far from the Blue Boar. It is thought Berlin in 1795 was the first city to employ the numbering system. The German innovators did not put odd numbers on one side of their streets and even numbers on the other. They merely started from the Brandenburg gate and numbered straight ahead, taking no account of change of street. As they proceeded, therefore, the numbers grew higher, the height to which they attained being limited only by the supply of houses. The first house they numbered was No. 1, the last the number that betokened the total number of houses in the city.—St. Louis Republic.

An Author's Odd Aversion.

The "stole" meal had attractions for Edward Fitzgerald, who, among his other peculiarities, hated to see people enjoying their food. On one occasion, after a man had finished a glass of wine in his company and gone out of the room, Fitzgerald remarked, with disgust: "Did you notice how he took up his glass? I am sure he likes it. Bah!" Fitzgerald himself, according to his biographer, Mr. A. C. Benson, "lived practically on bread and fruit, mostly apples and pears, even a turnip, with sometimes cheese or butter and milk puddings. But he was not a bigoted vegetarian. To avoid an appearance of singularity he would eat meat at other houses and provided it in plenty for his guests. But the only social meal he cared to join in was 'tea, pure and simple, with bread and butter.'"

Where Every One Is a "Majesty." Who are the politest people in Europe? If common speech is any criterion, surely the Spaniards must carry off the palm. The author of "Heroic Spain" tells of many high flown phrases still in common use. You bid farewell with "Beso a V. la mano" (I kiss your hand) or "A los pies de V." (I am at your feet). The Usted, shortened to V., with which you address high or low, is a corruption of "your majesty." The love of abbreviations is a curious trait in a people with such leisurely ways; thus a row of calligraphic letters ends a letter: S. S. S. Q. B. S. M., which means that your correspondent kisses your hand—"su seguro servidor que besa su mano."

A King Who Could Change the Wind. King Ericus of Sweden publicly confessed that he was a sorcerer and magician. He was the owner of an enchanted cap, which he pretended enabled him to control the spirits and change the direction of the winds at pleasure. So firmly did his subjects believe in the supernatural powers of their ruler that when a storm arose they would exclaim, "Ah, the king is again wearing his magic cap!"—London Mail.

Not Carrying It. An Irishman met with an accident, but was only away from work two days. "Why didn't you stay home for a week?" a friend asked him. "You were carrying an insurance policy, weren't you?" "I was not," said the Irishman. "The day of the accident I left it home in the bureau drawer."

Their Use.
 "Do you enjoy your meals, old man?"
 "Enjoy my meals?" snorted the indignant dyspeptic. "My meals are merely guideposts to take medicine before or after."—Washington Herald.

This expression, "Where their very dieth not and the fire is not quenched," signifies that the destruction of the class represented would be complete, that nothing would interfere to save them from destruction. Adam's death will be destroyed, as the Scriptures declare. Christ died that He might have the rightful authority to destroy Adamic death and uplift all of Adam's race who will accept His favor back to all that was lost by Adam, and redeemed at Calvary. The Second Death is a friend to a who love righteousness, since it will utterly destroy such as have love and sympathy for sin and refuse to be obedient to the Divine will after full enlightenment.

CHAPTER XVI.

THE stranger went back to New York on the same train with Kelvin. As was quite natural, he took the subway where Kelvin did and followed into the same car. He also left the train at the same uptown station, and Kelvin noticed with a frown that he followed up the street. When Kelvin and Sam turned in at their hotel, however, the man passed on, and Phillip convinced himself that the thing had been merely a coincidence. It did seem to him, however, that wherever he went recently he found some poorly dressed stranger with him, always a different man, but always having that indefinable air of being a workman out of a job.

That night the stranger in an obscure lodging house wrote a long and laboriously scrawled letter, which he afterward translated into cipher, to George Blagg at Forest Lakes, and Kelvin in his splendidly furnished apartments at the expensive Esplanade wrote a full report of his day's doings to Henry Breed, also at Forest Lakes.

Kelvin seemed to be going in rather extensively for real estate, for the morning found him poring over an immense hand drawn map of New York city whereon three large sections were blackly shaded. While he was copying some figures one Patsy McCalken, a red faced man with a mole on his nose, was announced. To him Kelvin displayed the blot over which he had been busy and asked pertinent questions about it.

"It's no use, Mr. Kelvin," announced Mr. McCalken. "I don't know who's behind you unless it's old Henry Breed, but the man don't live that can swing them precincts away from the big chief. And you say there's nawthin' doin' with him."

"But they're your precincts," objected Kelvin. "I am told that they lie in the hollow of your hand; that they vote as you tell them to the last man; that they'll follow you into the river."

Mr. McCalken only grinned. "Anyhow, there's no chance on earth, no matter how much was no matter how strong the arguments that might be held out."

"All right, then," concluded Kelvin briskly. "If you can't swing that district to my principal I'll have to take it away from you."

Mr. McCalken's grin became a guffaw. "When you do that," said he, taking his hat. "I'll say you're a bigger man than Dick Croker ever was."

"We expect to make Mr. Croker a slim and faded memory of ineffectiveness," announced Kelvin, smiling and looking at his watch.

His next caller was of a different type. "Hello, Pellman," said Phillip heartily, coming forward to shake hands with him. "It's as good to see you as it was to hear your voice over the phone the other day. How are things coming with you?"

"Rotten, thank you," confessed Pellman, with a wry smile. "I don't mind admitting that you broke me so completely I can't start anything big enough to inspire confidence."

"Would it inspire any confidence if you were known to be engineering the most enormous real estate deal ever consummated in New York?"

Pellman's eyes began to brighten. "It would have to be a big one," he warned.

"Would you call it a big one to buy these districts?" And Kelvin indicated the three shaded spots on his map.

"Buy them?" gasped Pellman. He barely glanced at the map and then surveyed Kelvin in astonishment.

"Why, man?" He paused. Words were lame things.

"Well, I want them," declared Kelvin. "The reason I have sent for you is of the United States. Here and there districts were lightly shaded. In other places they were cross-hatched. In others left in pure white. The senator was gravely glad to see his dear young friend, Mr. Kelvin; gravely anxious about his physical condition and as gravely solicitous about the health of his dear old friend, Mr. Henry Breed.

"As for myself," Kelvin smilingly informed him, "I shall leave you to judge. As for Mr. Breed, he is hearty enough to desire myself and Mr. Rollins nominated for the offices respectively of president and vice president of the United States by your party at the convention this coming spring."

"Am I to understand that you are in earnest about this?" the senator painfully inquired.

"Certainly," replied Kelvin calmly. "As earnest as we were about breaking up Mr. Hepperdon's monopoly."

Mr. Sawyer winced. He had once been Hepperdon's chief senator and had only recently, upon the unfortunate dissolution of Mr. Hepperdon's combine, associated himself with Mr. Breed.

"We have every prospect of success," Kelvin evenly resumed. "In the first place, as the absolute proprietor of every ounce of bread and cereal food-stuff in the United States, Mr. Breed had a great many friends and useful advisers among the various legislative bodies of the country." Senator Sawyer gravely nodded his head.

"In the second place, after he had secured control over every mile of railroad in the United States, Mr. Breed took a notion to do a little trust busting which proved highly successful, and thereupon he became possessed by reason of his immense anchorage facilities of several other suddenly attached friends and useful advisers. Quite a little army, senator."

"Y-e-s," slowly admitted Mr. Sawyer, with great mournfulness.

The senator had been harboring quite other plans than those proposed by Kelvin.

"You will find, senator," went on Kelvin, "that the campaign is perfectly mapped out. I wish to remain, as does Mr. Rollins, an ostensible dark horse up to the very hour of the nomination, and your operations will need to be as quietly conducted as possible. Our headquarters will comprise private apartments for yourself and such others as you care to have with you, and all living expenses will, of course, go in with the other items of expenditure. There will naturally be a generous honorarium attached. I shall be highly gratified if you will take charge of the bureau, as will Mr. Breed and Mr. Rollins."

Mr. Breed's request, coming through Kelvin, was an order. "The entire matter comes as a surprise to me," said the senator, "but as a very pleasant surprise. I can see a most interesting campaign stretching before us, and it will afford me keen delight if I can in any way contribute to the success of two such remarkable young men as yourself and Mr. Rollins."

Herbert Rensselaer called bawling the fact that his revered aunt was cheerfully sacrificing the absurdly large salary which she denied that she received to make a dabbler out of him because a Rensselaer must not work.

"I am supposed to repay her by marrying the aforesaid Lillian, who doesn't know it yet," he said. "Honestly, Kelvin, if something doesn't turn up upon which I may expend a little man power energy I'll explode by and by."

"Just possess your soul in patience," advised Kelvin, smiling. "Wait until I am elected president, and I'll make a cabinet officer of you."

"Nonsense," protested Herbert. "I have no qualifications, old chap."

"Yes, but you have," insisted Kelvin, speaking quite seriously. "You cannot be influenced, coerced or bought."

Young Rensselaer suddenly straightened up. "You are right," said he with a snap of his jaws, "and you may bet your last penny upon it that I'll carry out your orders absolutely, wherever you put me, whether in the cabinet or at the head of an army."

"You might even have a chance at that," returned Kelvin dryly. Rensselaer departed and Rollins came in.

"I have a brilliant solution for your Long Island transportation problem," he began with enthusiasm. "I can deliver commuter trains to your farthest point if it does not exceed the eighty-five mile run you promised in one hour from the bridge subway station."

Kelvin nodded in satisfaction. "I knew you could work it out," he commented. "I'll have the necessary permits in two weeks, and you can begin construction at once. In the meantime let me show you a new map."

And from the thick pile of such diagrams upon his desk he drew one showing the entire consolidated railroad system of the United States.

"Rollins, in your mastery of every mile of railroad in the United States you have the most powerful political engine ever devised by man."

"I don't like it to be prostituted to this use," protested Rollins.

"The same old cry," returned Kelvin, with a slightly exasperated laugh. "You ought to be satisfied. I don't know how many millions of graft you have eliminated. You've equalized freight rates so that the small shipper has an equal chance with the big one. You've been able to break up a score of top heavy monopolies and trusts. You've accomplished at least half your designs."

"I know," granted Rollins; "but, even so, I have been compelled for political reasons to give rebates which I had sworn I would never give. I have been compelled for political purposes to make concessions which I had sworn I would never make."

"You're the most persistent chap," complained Kelvin. "When we have a congress and a senate of our own choice we can carry out all the Utopian plans of both Breed and ourselves. These concessions that you are making are only investments, as Breed would say."

Rollins looked up curiously. "I don't quite understand Breed," said he. "He seems at times to possess all his old shrewdness, but at other times to be involved in a maze of mysticism."

Kelvin frowned. "He's spending too much time with his Bible," he declared. "He's intemperate with it."

Kelvin, returning shortly after midnight from his evening with Rensselaer, went directly to his own sleeping apartment, which was at the extreme end of his suite. Sam, crouching on the floor in the corner with pillows and cushions at his back, opened his coal black eyes unblinkingly, passing instantly from profound sleep to alert wakefulness. Kelvin having by this time sat down, Sam removed his master's shoes and placed comfortable slippers on his feet. While he was at work he looked up with a sudden shrill chuckle and a grin so wide that it broke into queer, curves the long, straight scar on his cheek.

"What are you laughing at, Sam?" asked Phillip.

"Oh, jes' nothin'," declared Sam, and chuckled still more.

"I bet you are thinking of Lucy," charged Phillip.

"Ah reckon Ah am," confessed Sam, with a laugh that ended in a shrill fiasco. "Lucy an' stimpin' else."

"Something else, eh? What is it?"

"Ah ain' done s'pose to tell," giggled Sam. "Got t' have a secret once in awhile, boss."

Sam bustled himself about the remaining preparations for Kelvin's retiring and while he did so gave vent to occasional chuckles, to which, however, Kelvin paid but little attention, for already he was immersed in that half hour of revel in the vast gilded halls of the future which was his one habitual dissipation before retiring, and he scarcely realized when Sam had departed for the night so occupied was he with his boundless enterprises and ambitions. Olympus! With that height alone would he be content, and he had no bodily or spiritual, mental or moral clog to weight him down.

In his exultation he rose to his full height, obeying an instinct which impelled him to stand that he might feel the superb strength of his body, and of his soul and of his will untrammelled by any weakening support. As he did so the slight and cautious click of a knob and the slight, careful creak of a door startled him. He turned hastily in the direction from which the sounds had come. The end door of his suite was the customary twin affair by which hotel apartments are separated. On taking these apartments he had tried his own door and found it locked, but nevertheless it was this door which was opening.

A Biblical Mathematician.

As interesting problem in mathematics assumes the form of a tradition connecting itself with the name of Joseph, the Jewish historian. After the Romans had captured Ptolemy, the story runs, Josephus and forty others sought shelter in a cave. So afraid were they of falling into the hands of the Romans that all of them excepting Josephus and one other man resolved to kill themselves. The wit of the historian began to work, devising a scheme to save himself and this other man who was like minded with himself. He therefore proposed that they all stand in a semicircle, that they put each other to death, killing every third man in regular order and that the last surviving man should then commit suicide. This agreed upon, he was careful to place his like minded comrade in the sixteenth place in the line and himself in place thirty-one, with the result that the two were the last that were left and by this means escaped death. It is a true problem, and the question was to know before the killing began which numbers in the line the two friends should assume.—Doulsville Courier-Journal.

His More Important Duty.

The error into which King Alfred fell in that famous instance when he let the cakes left in his care burn is not going to be repeated by the telegraph operator of whom Arthur W. North tells in "Camp and Casino in Lower California."

I learned at this point that for the first 500 miles before me I would require more change than I had on hand and would pass through no place where checks could be cashed. Moreover, my drafts were used up. In this dilemma I wired for money. After four days of exasperating delays I received this satisfying message from the obliging operator of the wireless office:

"Operator on other coast say he have two messages for some one, but his bread is oven-wife she away—and might burn if he leave it long. After lunch he transmit message."

Where is the Chinaman?

Sir Robert Ball told the story of a Chinaman who entered the bridge over Niagara falls. He started from the American side with the idea of crossing to Canada. On arriving at the Canadian end, however, he was met with the information that there was a toll of £10 on all Chinamen coming into Canada. John hadn't 10 cents in his pocket. So he started back again. Arriving once more at the American side, he was stopped. No Chinaman in any circumstances, they told him, was allowed to enter the United States. Now, the problem that Sir Robert Ball professes himself unable to answer is: Where is the Chinaman now? Is he still on the bridge? If not, by what process of circumnavigation were the laws of two great nations circumvented?—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Bank of Glendale

LISTEN—

This bank cashes over three thousand personal checks per month given by Glendale people who carry their accounts in Los Angeles banks. So far we have made no charge for this service, and do it only because the inconvenience it would otherwise cause our patrons.

BUT—

Why should the Glendale people keep their accounts in Los Angeles banks and expect Glendale banks to handle them at par?

Is this carelessness, thoughtlessness, or just a plain indisposition to consider the best interests of the community in which you live?

Come in and let's talk it over.

A Bleak and Barren Coast.

Bleak and barren is the west coast of South America, where it is always cloudy, yet never rains, where it is chilly even up under the equator, where never a tree nor a blade of grass is to be seen—only the parched and hungry foothills of the Andes, swept with windrows of sand, and behind them fleeting glimpses of the towering peaks of the main mountain chain. Probably nowhere else in the world is there a seacoast of equal extent so desolate and uninviting.

Harbors there are few or none. Coquimbo, 200 miles north of Valparaiso, and Callao are safe and of commercial value. But, although there are few harbors, there are many ports. The Pacific ocean, true on this coast, at least, to its name, makes it possible for a vessel to anchor almost anywhere to take and leave cargo by means of lighters. Loading and unloading the lighters at the shore are made possible by artificial breakwaters or a fortunate conformation of the land which affords shelter for small craft.—New York Post.

Sensitive.

Stranger (in Pittsburgh)—Do you have a friend at large in this city?
Native (irritably)—Oh, try that stuff in vanderbilts—Puck.

Why He Retracted.

Kilmore—After all, Stedman isn't so bad a fellow. He came to me, man fashion, and took back all the things he had said against my people. Burman—Did it voluntarily? Kilmore—Practically that. It is true I threatened to shoot him on sight if he didn't retract, but that was only a matter of detail.—Exchange.

Anything to Oblige.

Tourist (at Irish hotel)—You seem tired, Pat. Waiter—Yiss, sorr; up very early this morning—half past 6. Tourist—I don't call half past 6 early. Waiter (quickly)—Well, half past 6 thin.—London Punch.

Contradictory Admonitions.

Father (having caught his son in a lie)—Haven't I always told you to tell the truth? Son—Yes, father, but you also told me never to become the slave of a habit.—Boston Transcript.

Lodger—I can't stay here any longer, Mrs. Binks. Landlady—Why not, sir? What is your complaint? Lodger—Lung complaint. Your baby howls too much.—London Telegraph.

There will be three store rooms on the main floor and office rooms and apartments on the second floor.

WEST GLENDALE

Chas. Decker of Huntington Beach was in Glendale Sunday as the guest of his friend, Howard Elliott. The young man speaks in the highest terms of the high school there, and although the attendance is not so great, they make up for it in the strength of the different departments winning high honors in everything. The remarkable growth of Huntington Beach was spoken of also—an unusually large number of homes have gone up in the past few months and much of the property has doubled in value within the past year. The beet sugar factory which is now in operation has been the means of about two hundred or more families making their homes there. During the hot spell here the weather at Huntington Beach was never above 73 degrees and very seldom any fog.

Mr. L. T. Dyer of Louise and Mountain streets who has been in poor health for some time has gone to a Los Angeles hospital for treatment.

There is a rumor to the effect that a two-story brick business block is to be erected on the southwest corner of Central and Lorraine, to be occupied one room by a grocery and another by a drugist.

The trestle over the wash seems to be about completed but the junction between the Burbank line and the P. E. is not made as yet and the outcome is being watched with interest. The character of the bridge as an obstruction to the storm water that makes its way to the Los Angeles river from Verdugo Canon by the way of this wash, may be understood by the fact that the wash which is not more than fifty feet wide is crossed by this bridge supported on twenty bents set approximately 15 feet apart, which will necessitate the water making almost a right angle turn to get down stream.

LOS ANGELES THEATRES

BELASCO—"THE WORLD AND HIS WIFE."

"The World and His Wife," made known locally last season by William Faversham, will be played at the Belasco this week by Lewis S. Stone and the stock organization, with Mr. Stone in the Faversham role and Thais Magrane in the part created by Julie Opp. Charles Frederic Nirdlinger who made the adaption from the Spanish of Jose Echegaray's El Gran Galeoto, the Great Scandal, received all sorts of praise from the local critics for the perfection of his work and for the retention of all of the beauty and poetry of the original in spite of the fact that his English version is rendered in prose. In characterization, "The World and His Wife" is truthful as well as subtle. The people of the play are differentiated with clearness, yet all have been drawn with a thousand little effective touches, gaining almost imperceptibly that verisimilitude which in art takes the place of life, only awaiting the vivifying touches of competent actors to make them appear alive.

BURBANK THEATRE—"MARGARET ILLINGTON IN 'KINDLING'."

The second play to occupy the attention of Margaret Illington during her special starring engagement with the Burbank Stock company is Charles Kenyon's new play, Kindling, which will have its first production on any stage at the Burbank commencing Sunday afternoon, July 30.

Kindling is a new and tremendously vital drama, founded on the most essential and profound of all human emotions, mother love.

Turning from the drawing room drama, with its superficialities and its Parisian gowns, Miss Illington has selected a play whose locale is the congested tenement district of New York, and whose characters are taken from the lowest social order. "Kindling" deals potently with the conditions found in this unhealthy environment, where the squalid struggle for food is the one great actuating force of existence—where human nature is laid bare, and the ruthless realities of life are exposed in all their tragic truth.

In the part of Maggie, Miss Illington will enact the most difficult role of her entire stage career. For, though simple and elemental, Maggie is yet intricately subtle, and in her emotionalism there is no attempt at repression. Her nature is one of primitive naturalness, and in its portrayal the very highest form of historic art is required.

To Byron Beasley will fall the part of Heiney, the stevedore; Ida Lewis will fill the role of Mrs. Bates; the young doctor will be interpreted by Mr. Mestayer; and David Hartford will portray the character of Steve, the music hall bouncer.

The entire numerical strength of the Burbank company will be seen in "Kindling," while a scenic production of extraordinary merit is promised.

"Kindling," gives every indication of being one of the biggest successes the Burbank stage has ever known. Already the advance sale of seats has assumed enormous proportions, and large blocks of seats have been secured by theater parties who want to witness the early performances of this play which is destined to be one of the sensations of the current season when it is given by Miss Illington in New York in the fall.

SOMETHING OF INTEREST TO THE HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Dora Gibson, musical instructor in the high school, arrangements have just been completed which will be very beneficial to all pupils wishing to fit themselves as supervisors of music in schools. Should any of the pupils wish to accomplish this they will merely have to take the full course of music in the high school and two years in the normal, later on. Mrs. Gibson deserves a great deal of credit for her work in bringing about this splendid movement, which will be of great value to all interested in the same.

COMPLIMENTARY PARTY.

In honor of Miss Frances Broxham of Chicago, Miss Pearl Goode of Cedar street entertained a number of friends at her home on Tuesday evening. The yard was gaily decorated with Japanese lanterns and the parlors were effective with armfuls of flowers.

The greater part of the evening was devoted to dancing and cards which was followed by the serving of dainty refreshments by the hostess assisted by Miss Doris Robison.

A delightful time was enjoyed by those present, among whom were several out-of-town guests.

Mr. W. G. Osborne of Long Beach has opened a barber shop at 314 Brand boulevard of which Mr. W. P. Smith is manager. The announcement will be found in our advertising columns.

A SHIP WITHOUT AN ANCHOR.

By Nanno Woods in L. A. Express.
As a ship without an anchor
Floats adrift upon the waves,
Seeking amidst the heaving waters
For the rest it vainly craves;
At the mercy of the billows,
Blown by angry gusts of wind,
Buffeted, distressed and storm-tossed,
Battered by a fate unkind.

As a bark without a compass,
Steers a troubled ocean road,
Reaching for an unknown harbor,
Harassed by a grim forbode;
Peering through dark rolling shadows,
Praying for some timely help,
Threatened by a shallow sand-bank,
Struggling in the tangled kelp—

So the soul, in darkness groping,
Sails adrift upon life's sea,
Overwhelmed by haunting shadows
Of a vague uncertainty.
Comes a voice across the darkness,
Shines a light from clouds above,
And the soul is safely anchored
In the harbor of much love.

HIGH SCHOOL.
School opens Sept. 11th. Examinations will be held on the Friday and Saturday preceding for the admission of new students. The addition of manual training and domestic science to the curriculum will fill the building to its capacity the coming year. An evidence of growth which is encouraging to everybody except the school authorities who have to struggle with the problem of how to get along in restricted space.

A Few "DONT'S" and Other Suggestions to those About to Have Their Children Photographed

DON'T tell them they are going to have their pictures taken.
DON'T tell them they must be good and mind the "man!"
Rather say, "we're going down to the playhouse to have games and see the toys. Won't that be fun?"
DON'T fuss them up too much. Starchy stiffness is not conducive to naturalness nor good humor.
DON'T bring them just before a nap or you may have to come again. The hours between 9:30 a. m. and 3:00 p. m. are best.
DON'T forget that the

"Weston Studio"

has a reputation for obtaining happy, natural pictures of little folks. They love to come here and play.
